THE ROLE

Based in our Brighton studio, you'll be a technically competent self starter who understands how to tell a story. You will shoot and edit, but - more importantly - you're a filmmaker with ambition. You'll be comfortable in a range of situations - from leading large crews to guerrilla style solo projects - from corporate and commercial through to independent documentary work, you are obsessed with everything film and ready to exceed expectations at all times, never leaving a project until you're proud to call it your own. Above all else, you are bursting with creative ideas that you're desperate to share and put into motion with a team of like minded people, all focused on stunning visual storytelling.

We shoot on a range of cameras to achieve our distinct, cinematic look. You'll need to be experienced working with DSLR kits, right through to large sensor cameras such as the Arri Amira. You don't need to know the technical details of all of our kit, just know how to create beautiful images. Our studio uses Adobe Creative Cloud for all our post production, including Premiere Pro and After Effects. Again, you are not expected to have years of experience in these programmes, but will show a strong desire to learn as and when you can.
